——— Vol. II. Part I. 1809-10. 6*s. sewed.*

ACTS of Parliament are printed shortly after they have received the Royal Assent: each Act is numbered or chaptered in the order in which it is printed; and each year or session has a new series of numbers or chapters. There are three descriptions of Acts of Parliament, and three distinct series of numbers or chapters in each year or session.—All the Acts which are of a public and general nature are classed by themselves, and are named PUBLIC ACTS; to which belong the first series of numbers or chapters in each year. The Acts which are of a public nature, but limited in their operation, such as relate to turnpike roads, &c., are denominated LOCAL ACTS; to which belong the second series of numbers or chapters. The third class of Acts consists of such as are of a more private nature, and relate to inclosures of common lands, family estates, naturalisation, dissolution of marriages, &c., and are called PRIVATE ACTS.

Public and Local Acts are sold singly, Public Acts at 2*d.* and Local Acts at 3*d.* per sheet, and may be had of the Publishers of this Catalogue; who have also on sale a very extensive collection of PRIVATE ACTS, which, being printed at the expense of the parties concerned, and of very limited circulation, are sold at 1*s.* per sheet.

The Public General Acts have been collected, and published under the title of "THE STATUTES AT LARGE," by several editors. There are three editions in 4to., bearing an uniform appearance, and commencing with Magna Charta. The most complete is by Mr. OWEN RUFFHEAD: the next, by Serjeant RUNNINGTON; and the least extensive collection is by MESSRS. TOMLINS and RAITHBY. These are continued annually from the period of the Union with Ireland, 1801, by one series, now edited by N. SIMONS, Esq. There are also two editions in 8vo., commencing with Magna Charta, the best by Mr. DANBY PICKERING, and the other by MR. RAITHBY: both are continued annually by one series similar in size. The royal 8vo. edition of the Statutes, commonly called the twopenny edition, commences with the 1st Will. IV., and is published in numbers at 2*d.* each; it does not contain the Tables of Local and Private Acts which are attached to the other editions.

 See "Statutes at Large."

Railway and other Joint-Stock Companies requiring the authority of Parliament, and within 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, for some purposes.—5. Banking Companies. The Law of Railway and other Joint-Stock Companies is fully considered, together with the bearing thereon of the most recent cases, and the operation of all the recent statutes. The Appendix contains precedents of partnership deeds, requisites for deeds of settlement presented for complete registration, and all the statutes relating to Railway and Joint-Stock Companies. By Andrew Bisset, of Lincoln's Inn, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1847. 18*s. bds.*

"We should not have believed, had we not witnessed the success of the experiment, that the Law of Partnership could be thoroughly expounded within the compass of 176 pages, which is the extent of the first part of the work, devoted to the law of ordinary partnerships.

The second part of the work will be peculiarly acceptable to the profession, who have hitherto been unfurnished with any treatise on the Law of Joint-Stock Companies.

"As a specimen of the succinctness of our author's style, which, to give it the highest praise that a text writer can desire, reminds us of 'The Compendium of the Law of Real Property,' we extract the first four paragraphs of the book."—Jurist, No. 532, March 20. 1847.

FEARNE'S (C.) Essay on the Learning of Contingent Remainders and Executory Devises. 10th edit. containing the Notes, Cases, and other matter added to the former editions, by C. Butler. With an Original View of Executory Interests in Real and Personal Property, comprising the Points deducible from the Cases stated in the Treatise of Fearne, as well as Statements of, and the Conclusions from, Three Hundred additional Cases, together with References to numerous other Decisions, and so connected with the Text of Fearne, as to form a body of Notes thereto. By Josiah W. Smith, B.C.L. Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1844.

The Original View forms an entire volume of 452 pages, exclusive of the Analysis and Index, and it is so planned and connected with the text of Fearne, by means of figures in the inner margin, that it may be used, either as a large supplemental body of notes to that more lengthy but far less comprehensive work, or as a compendious substitute for the same.

In Andrews v. Andrews, Times, March 15, 1845, Sir J. L. Knight Bruce, V. C., remarked, "he had heard it said, with some astonishment, that a recent statute (the 'Act for Simplifying the Transfer of Property') would render Mr. Fearne's book obsolete. He was not of that opinion; so far from it, that he thought the greater part of it, if not the whole, would still be of the very greatest possible moment to be understood by EVERY lawyer." And in Mortimer v. Hartley, Law Times, for 19th June, 1847, His Honour characterized the Original View as "an extremely useful work."

 Mr. W. D. Lewis, author of a Treatise on Perpetuity, and Lecturer on Real Property at Gray's Inn, in his pamphlet on Remainders, p. 10, speaks of "The Original View" in these terms: "The writer cannot refrain from expressing his sense of the boon conferred on the profession in this masterly and scientific companion to an incomparable work."

"The authorities have been collected, arranged, and stated with great diligence and perspicuity, so that the work is really valuable for reference, while the principles are satisfactorily deduced. . . . . Never was there a book better or more conveniently furnished with the machinery of reference. Indexes, head-notes, side notes, numbered placita, and marginal references from one part of the work to another, double the value of the stores of information contained in it, by furnishing a ready means of access to them."—JURIST, May 3rd, 1845.

Leading Cases on Pleading, with Practical Notes, illustrating the Law and the Pleadings in the Actions of most common occurrence; as Debt for Rent, and Use and Occupation; an Account stated; Money had and received; Bills of Exchange, &c., with the ordinary defences in such Actions; and the Law of Parties to Actions in contract designed to assist both the Practitioner and Student. Royal 8vo. 1847. 12*s. bds.*

"The Notes themselves are learned, and, we may add, elaborate Treatises upon the matters to which they relate. * * * * The frequent reference to the very fountain heads of the Law, the Year Books and the older Reports, honourably distinguishes these Notes."—LAW MAG. No. 10, N. S. Feb. 1847.

"Mr. Finlason has displayed great learning in the Notes, and we heartily commend his volume to the careful and repeated perusal of every law student, and it will doubtless be found a useful addition to the library of the practising Pleader, who may often advantageously refresh his memory with it."—LAW TIMES, 30th Jan. 1847.

"This is a useful book on an important subject, after the manner of the late Mr. Smith's leading cases.

The notes are able and copious."—LEGAL OBSERVER, 5th June and 30th Oct. 1847.

"In his Notes the author has displayed considerable ingenuity in handling the cases he comments on, together with no little erudition in "Year Book Law," and many subjects on which he treats are discussed in a manner that discovers at the same time powers of legal analysis and combination, and great logical dexterity. The best idea of the book will be conveyed by saying that it resembles in plan and form, so far as it goes, Serjeant Williams's edition of Saunders's Reports."—TIMES, 14th April, 1847.

"We think the Notes are carefully written: the Analysis and Index will afford a ready reference to the several Orders; and the work must be peculiarly useful to the practitioners of the Court."—LEGAL OBSERVER, Dec. 27, 1845.

"The peculiar feature of Mr. Miller's 'Orders in Chancery,' that, indeed, to which it is mainly indebted for the kindly reception it has found, is the very convenient CLASSIFICATION of the Orders UNDER DISTINCT HEADINGS, ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY, so that the practitioner is enabled to lay his finger in a moment upon all that relates to the subject-matter under his consideration. To add to the completeness of the work, notes are appended of all the decisions of the Courts upon the construction of the various Orders.

"An Appendix presents the Orders in extenso; to these reference is made in the alphabetical Analysis, so that if a doubt arises as to the construction, the very words may readily be cited."

SPENCE (G.) On the Equitable Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery; comprising its Rise, Progress, and final Establishment: to which is prefixed, with a view to the elucidation of the main subject, a Concise Account of the Leading Doctrines of the Common Law, and of the Course of Procedure in the Courts of Common Law in regard to Civil Rights; with an attempt to trace them to their sources; and in which the various alterations made by the Legislature, down to the present day, are noticed. Vol I. Royal 8vo. 1846. 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d. bds.*

"Now the author of the book before us has at least this merit, that he has investigated with most surprising labour all the environs of his main subject. The extent to which this labour has been undertaken will be understood by the fact, that this bulky, closely-printed volume—and there never was less bookmaking in any book than in this—is entirely devoted to in fact the introductory part of his work. * * * The historical part reaching, as appears from a passage we havealready quoted, only as far as the reign of Charles II., though a good deal of general law is introduced, which is carried down to the present times."

* * * "The reader, however, will be surprised at the mass of information which it contains; all the principal branches of learning are explored."—LAW MAGAZINE, N. S., No. 8.

"Great thanks, then, are due to the lawyers who explore, for the benefit of their brethren, the history of the law, sacrificing to the study of legal antiquarianism not only their rest, but that which is even dearer to Englishmen, the acquisition of wealth. Mr. Spence has entitled himself to these thanks by the production of the volume now before us, in which we find, as the result of inquiries that must have been painfully laborious, a deeply interesting account of the origin and gradual growth of the Court of Chancery and of its equitable principles."—JURIST, July 4th, 1846.

 The first part of the Second Volume, which will be first published, will comprise the Doctrines as to Modern Trusts, express, and by operation of law—The Administration of Assets—Charities—The Equitable Rights of Married Women—The Doctrines of the Court as to Mortgages, and the Jurisdiction of the Court as to Infants. The Second Part will contain the remaining subjects of the First Volume, from Chapter XVI. to the end of Book III., and will speedily follow.

At the end of each subject the rules of Practice and Pleading peculiarly applicable to such subject, and the course to be pursued in Interlocutory Applications, as for Payment of money into Court, &c. will be shortly stated. The intention being to give a summary of the Doctrines of the Court of Chancery on each head of its Jurisdiction, and to point out the course which each party has to pursue to obtain or to secure his rights in each particular case.

A Review and Analysis of the First Volume, by Professor Mittermaier, taken from the German Critical Review, printed uniform with the work, may be obtained by purchasers from the Publishers.

"There are now two general treatises on this extensive and intricate branch of the law, Mr. Starkie's and Mr. Phillipps's, of which it is not too much to say, that they excel all text books of the day in the combination of learning and research, with clear method and scientific precision. Mr. Phillipps's work, however, labours under this disadvantage, that it is confined to an examination of the general principles of Evidence, and does not treat of the rules applicable to particular subjects and actions, otherwise than as they illustrate those general principles. Mr. Starkie, on the other hand, reserving the first part of his work chiefly for the discussion of general principles, devotes two closely-printed volumes to a digest, alphabetically arranged, of the rules of evidence and the proofs applicable to particular subjects and actions. It is in this that the great practical superiority and utility of Mr. Starkie's book consists."—THE JURIST, No. 269.

TILSLEY'S (H.) Treatise on the Stamp Laws in Great Britain and Ireland; being an Analytical Digest of the Statutes and Cases, with Practical Observations thereon: together, also, with a Table of the Stamp Duties payable throughout the United Kingdom. 8vo. 1846. 1l. 6s. bds.

"Mr. Tilsley is evidently a gentleman of considerable ability and industry, and would have written well and soundly on the subject, even if his employment had not made it peculiarly his own; and in legal apprehension alone (a qualification which he certainly has not acquired at the Stamp Office) he fairly beats his predecessors and rivals, Messrs. Chitty and Collins. The cases are well stated and acutely criticised. But this is not all; the Book is complete, and admirably arranged for reference; and these merits we place to the credit of its official origin. It is a perfect working book of reference, and bears internal evidence of having been originally compiled, as the Author says, for the use of himself and those associated with him in his official duties."—JURIST, 23rd January, 1847.

* * * "There are several other important points to which Mr. Tilsley has called attention, some of which are not usually found in the books of practice. We may advert to these hereafter, and in the mean time recommend the volume as one of great practical utility to all branches of the profession.—LEGAL OBSERVER, Jan. 23rd, 1847.

"We notice this publication as one of considerable interest to the mercantile world, and to the profession of the law. It is by the Assistant Solicitor of Stamps and Taxes—the working officer of the department; and therefore not only comes forth as the book of a writer thoroughly acquainted with his subject, but amounts to something very like an official authority on this vexatious and complicated chapter of the law. Much attention has apparently been devoted to the probate and legacy duties. But the most elaborate portion of the work is that under the title 'Instrument,' which is distributed into several divisions, treating of the various subjects connected with the Stamp Duties on deeds, &c."—TIMES, December 23rd, 1846.

"A work that treats of this troublesome, complex, and difficult branch of practice, with orderly arrangement, in a lucid manner, and with extensive knowledge derived from large experience, is undoubtedly one of the most acceptable contributions to the professional library. Such a book is this of Mr. Tilsley upon the Stamp Laws.

"Necessarily, from his official position, must Mr. Tilsley enjoy advantages for procuring the best information, such as no other writer could command. His knowledge is not merely theoretical, it is eminently practical. Almost every possible combination of facts is yearly submitted to his judgment. He sees the actual working of the law, he is accustomed to apply it to particular cases, and hence no man could be imagined better qualified to instruct the lawyer on those laws and their interpretation.

"And he has made abundant use of his opportunities; evidently he has mastered the subject; he writes like one to whom it is familiar in all its phases. There are no obscurities of language; no half-hinted opinions that mark the doubting and half-informed author; all is precise and definite, like one who writes with the confidence that he fully understands what he is writing about."—LAW TIMES, January 2nd, 1847.

"It embodies in its text the pith of the decisions on 'Modern Pleading,' as incident to the above rules, and condenses in the notes other valuable matter at present spread over lengthy reports. The latter feature is adapted to render the volume more extensively useful in Courts of Nisi Prius, particularly on the circuits, and in the libraries of country practitioners. Nor is it rigorously limited to its chief object, but includes the course of decisions on the replication de injuriâ in its extended application, as well as on the modern acts respecting land, tithes, mines, commons, ways and easements, together with so much of the law of amendment, evidence, and costs as elucidates the new rules of pleading. On the whole, this work appears to have been prepared with much care and industry, and will be found to afford, in small comparative compass, a useful adjunct to the works of Stephen and Chitty."—TIMES, Oct. 29, 1846.
